YOUR WHOLE LIFE REVEALED Remarkable Physic Astrologer Tells Past and Future with Amazing Accuracy to All Who Write Absolutely Free.

MES AND WOMEN FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD SERKS HIS ADVICE ABOUT LOVE APPAIRS, BUSINESS, - BALTH, JOURNEYS, MARRIAGE LEGADIES, CHANGES,

TROM the great city of New York, where scientists and investigators are eagerly watching the progress of inventions and spending millions of dollars in the perfection of methods by which the masses may be benefitted, comes the startling announcement that Professor Albert Postel, the great Astrologer, has perfected a system by which he can foretell the principal events of a life, forewarn people of danger, point out the road to success and explain the cause of failure in so many lives. The professor says that he can explain who your enemies are, tell you those persons in whom you can place confidence and from whom you may expect favors, name your lucky days, tell you what pitfalls to avoid, what opportunities to grasp, advise you about your business and how to improve your condition physically, financially and socially. His method is unlike that of any other astrologer, and from the expres-sions of gratitude contained in the many thankful letters from his patrons, it is evident that much good is being accom-plished by his work. The following are samples of the letters received by Professor Postel, and go far toward showing that his Life Horoscopes are not only accurate, but are prepared with a view to guiding and benefitting those who apply to him for Effa M. Tryon writes: 'you are certainly the most wonderful astrologer living. Every one of your predictions came true. Mr Broad, real estate agent of Brandon, Can., in a recent letter to Mr Postel, says:

My Horoscope is the best instrument of guidance that I have ever had put in my hands. I would not take a hundred dollars for the information you have given me. Another letter, from Miss Bergliot Horne reads as follows: 'I followed your advice and succeeded in securing a position at a much higher salary than I anticipated.

consider the horoscope worth hundreds of dollars to me. · Charts and dials of strauge design surround the Professor in his daily work of answering the correspondents and sending out readings to people in all parts of the From a glance at the features of Professor Postel, 'tis clear to be seen that Thursday, Jan. 23rd, at 5.30 p.m. he is a man who has a kindly feeling toward humanity, and his manner and conversation tend to prove that he is sincere in his desire to be of real benefit to his

OVERLANDING IN CHINA.

From Hankow to Hongkong.

Last evening Mr A. P. Wilder, Consul-General for the United States, addressed the members of the Odd Volumes Society, telling them of his recent tour in China. 21981 His remarks were followed by a large audience-including many ladies-with great interest, and altogether the address

Mr Wilder prefaced his address with a few humorous remarks bearing began October 15th and concluded December 14. Some days were spent at each of Foochow, which lie north of Hongkong at, THE HONGKONG LAND RECLAMA-174 spectively. After a few days in Shanghai, China. To find in the heart of the Em- will be held at the Company's Offices, pire, at a distance of nearly 700 miles from Victoria Buildings, on TUESDAY, the the sea, a bund of two miles lined with 28th January, 1908, at 11.15 A M., for the stately buildings, public, commercial, and Directors together with a Statement of private—set in lawns, fronted by a perfect | Accounts for the year ending 31st Decemroadway which constitutes a panorama of ber, 1907. nations living in harmony, is a foreible reminder of how much "Europeans" (foreigners) have to show for their half- which period no Transfer of Shares can be century of effort. While pirates continue their depradations in the Canton delta as in centuries past, on the Yangtsze, despite its great distances, there is no mention of this peril to trade. Steamship lines of a number of nations carry one almost daily from Shanghai to Hankow, and then a frequent service to Ichang nearly 400 miles further west on this river; while at Chungking, 600 miles yet further, are reach; at certain seasons of the year a 30 current and perilous rapids that attend the for the purp se of receiving the Report of gorge district. Chungking is in Si Chuen the Directors together with Statement of THIRD PRIZE :... Pair of Inner Tubes, one Bell and one Lamp. | gorge district. Chungking is in Si Chuen province—the largest of China's huge ber, 1907, divisions - a rich, promising territory as yet little known save to travellers and missionaries. To the south-west of Si Chuen is Yumnan province, which lies next to French China; and to the north-west is Kan Suh, also out of the track save to the most adventurous or the most devoted. Still further west lies Thibet. While there are practically no Europeans in these last nroas save missionaries, a glance at a map of the Inland Mission (which notes the stations of its own and of certain other societies) is a reminder of how thoroughly foreign religious endeavour has punctuated, though it has not permeated the huge Empire of Chipa Together the workers scores of millions of natives, but the compounds, with their little groups of from three to four to eight or ten men, women, and children are there, and the traveller, save in the extreme West, at average distances of 100 or 150 miles, comes upon the e cases of home culture, neatness, and cheer-ful hospitality; while in the provinces longer known to missionary effort, shorter distances lead from one station to another. Our party, which met at Hankow for the interior trip to Canton, consisted of Professor C. K. Edmunds, the acting president of Canton Christian College, who represents the department of ter-restrial magnetism of the Carnegie Institu-tion in China, and who took observations at various places; Hon. Edward Osborne, of Hongkong, member of the Colonial Legislative Council; and myself. We were accompanied by an interpreter, one of Professor Edmunds' students, a cook and a "boy." Our outfit consisted of twenty-six boxes of provisions, the boxes being of uniform size, each weighing with its contents about 50lbs. Each coolio carried two of these, and on the land trip they led us a rapid pace. From Hankow our party made its way by steamer, houseboat, and on foot to Canton - which lies nearly directly south at a distance of about 800 miles as measured by the line of the proposed railway. W followed this route about half-way, then bore to the south-west to Kweilin, the capital of Kwangsi province, thence down the Fu river to Wuchow on the West River where is steamboat service to Canton. We were six weeks between Hankow and Canton, but it can be done in a more direct route in a month. The Yangtsze trip from Shanghai by steamer is uneventful and uniform. To the North it is in general flat; on the south, mountainous; in fact, south of the Yangtsze River, which, roughly speaking, bisects the Empire, one always has mountains as close neighbours. With occasional exceptions, 3,000ft. elevation is not exceeded. The width of the river depends on the season of the year.

As we ascended, it was almost unprecedentedly high for so late in the year, and one could see water, streaked with land not wholly submerged, for miles in each direction. We passed villages of from ten to fifty houses from which the natives had been driven to the hills by the rising water, a few pathetic lingerers paddling about their fields to gather up any possible remnants of nourishment. It was easy to conceive how on the plains of the North thousands of square miles are flooded, with attendant devastation and misery. The Hankow steamer took us to Changsha, the capital of Hunan Province, in two days, and at this point we took a house boat for the 150 mile trip to Hungehow, in the centre of the province. To this last point the route was that of the Parsons engineering party, and of the line of the proposed railway to Canton, which, when completed, will link this metropolis of the south with Hankow, from which already stretches a line to Feking —a fairly south and north line 1,5000 miles long binding SWATOW DRAWN-WORK the three great cities of the Empire together. The Parsons' party, of which Hon, Chas. Denby, the present Consul-General at Shanghai, was interpreter, was the first to enter Changsha, a city of perhaps 300,000 people, and that was but ton years ago Now Hunan, long known as the . "Forbidden Province," is open to all comers; and the people, proud, independent and once most hostile are friendly beyond many others. The mon of Hunan are distinct BROKEN-DOWN SYSTEM. This is a condition (or disease) to which doctors give many names, but which few of them really understand. It is simply weakness—a break down, as it were, of the vital forces that sustain the system. No matter what may be its causes (for they are almost numberless), its symptoms are much the same; the more prominent being sleeplessness, sense of prostration or weariness, depression of spirits and want of energy for all the ordinary affairs of ille. Now, what alone is absolutely essential in all such cases is increased vilality—vigour— VITAL STRENGTH & ENERGY to throw off these morbid feelings, and experience proves that as night succeeds the day this may be more certainly secured by a course of the celebrated life-reviving tonic.

This wonderful restorative is purely vegetable and innocuous, tagrecable to the taste -aujtable for all constitutions and conditions, in either sex; and it is difficult to imagine a case of discose or derangement, whose main features are these of debility, that will not be speedly and permanently benefitted by this never-failing recepetative essence, which is destined to the oblivion interpthing that had preceded it for this wide-spreadand numerous class of human coments.

tively superior; some of the best soldiers of China come from this prevince. The city is credited with being the cleanest of Chinese cities, and while from a home standpoint there is much room for improvement, yet to one who knows the narrow, filth-littered cities, the wide principal streets of the Hunan capital, lined with attractive native shops, certainly form a cheering contrast. It is primarily an educational, political, residential city. The population includes many retired officials who live in Chinese elegance and dignity. Already there are some ten missionary societies represented in this city, although no Europeans are yet engaged in trade. Changsha is the seat of the Yale Educational Mission, an effort to set up a higher institution of western learning on broad lines, including medical work and training. It is supported by graduates of Yale, and the faculty includes highly trained young men and their wives tively superior; some of the best soldiers with a review of some 2,000 Chinese with a review of some 2,000 Chanese soldiers on their parade ground. The barracks surrounding the drill-prea are time modern buildings and neatness and syst me characterised every detail. The soldiers (infantry) had been trained by Japanese instructors, and they in turn by Germans, as the step of marching men showed. The trained soldiers that one sees in viceregal armies and on barrack ground must not be armies and on barrack ground must not be confused with the yamen runners and local magistrate police who were uniform and are popularly called "Soldiers." The latter are assigned to convey foreigners from one city to another; the number assigned to our party ranged from live to thirteen. They carried swords and their leader a clumsy revolver. They also had umbrellas, and in the season their Boots and Shoes, Gloves, fans are a feature of defensive equipment. It is unlikely that in the event of trouble Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats, from robbers or others that these picturesque and ever-hungry attendants would be of much use; but they were a con-Andalusian Wool, Crochet venience; for they gave an official charactor to the party, secured us a welcome, and perhaps averted impertinences which might grow to larger consequences. Barrack soldiers, however, such as these under the Governor of Hunan, are men of war who must be taken into future calculations, as each province builds up its army, as organization is perfected and (the uncertain and imperative condition of efficient fighting material) as patriotism is developed in the soldiers as citizens. The officers were fine looking men, the soldiers carried themselves in the traditional manly fashion, the movements by company were as well executed as one generally sees, and the manipulation of the rifles prompt and uniform. Withal, it was a revelation of possibilities to those who never before had seen well trained Chinese troops. Of course the question of how these troops would stand under fire - whether they would obey orders and die in their tracks One Four-Roomed House, at Praya (As supplied to the principal one, as to which the writer does not feel after the soldier's fashion, is the crucial qualified to speak. But the muchinery of war is all here as regards these infantry regiments at Changsha. Yuan Shi-kai, the progressive Viceroy of Chili, has an army of some 10,000 of these modern-trained Chinese soldiers, as to whose efficiency reports differ. As the faces of the soldiers

He wondered whother there were any to be found. It is quite true that one may travel hundreds of miles without coming in contact with what would pass as a "gentleman's house." They do not exist in China as they are found dotting the lands cape in the country districts in England. It should be pointed out, however, that there are well-to-do houses, but they are not found in the country. The houses of Yesterday Lady Lugard made her first the wealthy people are found in the dis-

There is no class of county families i China. If there were, there would not be anything in the country districts that would attract them to make the homes there. There are no proper roads; there is no shooting; there is no fishing as it is understool at home; there is no hunting; there is no "monthly sessions" where th poacher and the petty lawbreaker brought up before the ungistrate to be examined and generally fined. Consu quently there being nothing in these districts to attract, the families pravitate to the centres where they are likely to find their equals, and those with whom they can visit without much trouble and on equal terms. Then there is another thing. Generally speaking there are members of the best families who are fortunate enough to be officials somewhere. Hitherto in the past few wealthy families have had anything to they can add to their income, though they may not and do not themselves take much part in the actual working of the concern. But in the past the sons of the wealthy families look towards the only pathway to glory and to fame in China, which is an entry into official life. Once there, chances will make it possible for the ambitious youth not only to secure for himself and his parents a name but also wealth. It is obvious, however, that those who have relatives in official life would wish to live in the centres of population, and thus another reason obtains why they should no live in the midst of a wide paddy plain, or far from their own people; and every on account of the Boxer rebellion to: reason why they should wish to live in [ $11,655,000. the cities and if possible near to their relatives. Thus it comes to pass that and the houses which rise everywhere and which add so much beauty to the English landscape have yet to be built. These houses and families are to be found in the walled cities, but even then they must be looked for by those who know what to expect, or they will even then be passed over by the inexperienced globersetter who makes a tour, becoming familiar only with what is apparent.

The Chief Justice invited the Attorney-General to address himself to the point that the engagement should be given by the Chinese Government at Peking; both he and Mr Justice Wise were of that opinion. The Attorney-General replied that an engagement had already been given by the Chinese Govern mout with regard to this particular prisonor. Argument was adjourned sine die.

From Hungchow in central Hunan, we took a south westerly direction and walked and chaired to Kweilin, the capital of Kwangsi province—a distance of about 250 miles. On this part of the journey we saw the village life intimately, for the line of march was a succession of communitiesvillages every mile or so with a walled city every day or two. We slept in Chinese inns. As we carried our own bedding we were clean and comfortable enough; but sleep was murdered by coolie conversation far into the night and by the restlessness of the dogs, pigs, and chickens not far away. With a thin partition between one and a pony who shakes his bells each time he moves a muscle, there can be little sleep. Our journey the entire way was over a side walk centuries-old made of flat-stones specially referred to the conduct of the three or four feet wide, rarely of cobble stones-neatly set, the beaten track from central Hunan to Kiangsi Province to the south-west, and to the head-waters of the Fu river, which we were to descend by house-boat. This road stretched uphill and down. While there were ever mountain and rough broken country about us, the elevations to climb were not many or high; on we went through paddy fields, over additions to the schools was pressing rivers by pontoon bridges, and permanent ones of architectural strength and jeven beauty, as Mr Parsons notes in his book and through the hundreds of rest houses was praised by His Excellency, and he which charity has erected—shelters where It was nearly always in sight, on our trip one may sit him down and perhaps purchase and, while sonding a telegram from an someone of the fruits or sweets with which inland city where there are no Europeans the Chinese labourers supplements his rice. is an event that involves tea-drinking, We formed a procession of some forty men much conference between the staff from all-told; ourselves, coolies for baggages "No. 1" down to the coolies, with all the and chairs for the weary, and soldiers neighbours interested, yet the messages and soldiers' attendants (what useful usually in time reach their destination. purpose these last served I never knew); Peking has had telegraphic communication and the "No. 1 coolie" over all. Now with Canton for 30 years. It was a phase and then we passed through a walled city, of modernism that the Chinese Government or slept there. The people eyed us was quick to appreciate for political curiously-often it was a look of astonishment rather than mere curiosity; but there was no unfriendliness. When the attendants had prepared the meal in the inn we sat down to it in the presence of a large company; the table cloth interested them. and our articles of foreign food, bits of which we sometimes handed the women for inspection and practical test. Dr Morrison, quiries as to foot-binding, we were told the London "Times" correspondent, had that perhaps one third of the females, been over this Hungchow-Yungchow-Kweilin route recently (the travels by chair at a rapid pace); and Col. > niles. But soon foreigners will pushing in, and the "Real China, which one may now see in the interior purely native will be but a memory. There are two Chinas. The city life has progressive and cheerful phases; one sees well dressed people, the shops betoken wealth. But the small village life is an unbroken picture of filth, decay, retrogression and poverty beyond the power of pen to describe. It has been so often indicated that details are needless. The energies of these people are exclusively bent on getting food; their conversation in the North. Light or moderate mensoon has to do with the elemental things of exis- may be expected over the N. part of the tence. Each family keeps dogs and the brutes must look to themselves for food. The ferocious eagerness with which those poor animals contend for the most worthless and unclean refuse in the streets suggests how close to the margin of starvation millions of China's people live. A missionary lady instanced the case of one woman whose work was to tie strings to Chinese umbrellas. She received so many cash (10 to a Hongkong cent) for a cortain amount of work; and the daily stipend fell below 4 cents Mexican a day.

It should be understood that this poverty does not depress the on-locker as does the misery of slums of home cities. Chinese poverty is cheerful. In it is no envy of others, for poverty is the rule; nor a wide range of unsatisfied wants learned of refined civilization. These people are mutually helpful and happy, but it is a small cup of hoppiness rather than a large one. There can be no superstructure highly they may be recommended. There of higher living until they have their is one preparation that can always be dodaily bread more securely in hand, individual property acquisitions are on- it, and a quick ours is sure to follow. The worship-paraphanalia absorbs considerable of the money-joss sticks, firecrackers, and the like. Probably one store At Canton and even in Kweilin, capital in ten in the cities is devoted to spiritual equipment of this sort, and the 100,000 people, with not more than ten processions in the villages, shabby banners tawdry drapings; gilt paper and explosions. coolie saints and villainous-looking priests are only redeemed by the sparkling eyes and tumultiously happy small boys who are entrusted in preference to their fellows with the symbols and the gong; and one wishes to God he could turn the little fellows over to some good women at home to be washed and kissed, and sent to Rugby or Princeton that they might be led into all truth. They have it in them.

That is the surprising thing about this dead and buried China the redemptive capacity of its people. In them is no previously the people of Kweilin had suspicion of decay. They are alert and their unequalled industry, of their pencedemocracy. I have no word to tell of my has been suffering from gouty paralysis, house is handed over to the builders. The admiration for these tireless, faithful, cheerful coolie burden-carriers, jogging, scores of millions of them, uphill and down, rain of shine, over mountains or through has not returned. Still he has recovered rivers, cheering each other by songs and better than was at one time anticipated, asking only a pair of straw sandals some rice and green stuff two or three times day, and a place to sleep at night on the floor in their clothes-a half dozen of them in the area that a "white man" wants. All honour to the coolie of China! Century after century he is hardening his muscles and schooling his energies and storing up power, some day to find expression in a truly great people. Six hundred years ago our own ancestors were painting themselves green and hunting game with a knotted club. It is not a long time in the unfolding of a people.

It is not generally known how efficien the mail delivery is even in remote districts of China. **Chirch under laby wiscensin, and is credited with a population of the extent of population of China, has, long been debated. It is certainly significant that the missionaries (who with the customs officials and the few consults of long tenure in China know most about the Empiro) incline to the 400,000,000 estimate; nevertifiles my own impression based on the trip, which included 256 miles overland, is of a smaller number. It is true that in many province, one is practically never out of sight of a native, and that one rarely sees natives except in groups; it is also true that the density of population in clitics is very great and that in the cities the great portion of the females are not visible; yet the cities are not large in area, nor is the number of large cities great. The average Chinese village is a community of houses from ten to fifty in number, and while there are a great man to total the first million. From Changsha we continued south on the Sing River to Sing Ta, 36 miles, a city of perhaps equal population, stretched along the river for a long distance. It may be noted that at this point an American missicnary of some mechanical cloverness has taught the carpenters to make improved furniture, and now Stang Ta furniture goes to remote points, at a price that is withheld lest it kindle envy at home. We were now travelling by house boat a journey of 150 miles, yet we were 11 days do ing the distance, a day and more being spent at the Ping Shan Coal Mine and freinformed that all Goods are being enthusiasts. These house-boats are very and/or from the Wharves delivery may be interior was clean and almost claborate / THE business of the above Bank is conwith carved wood and coloured glass. These guardboats are large sampans more trimmed and neat in appearance than the usual river craft, with a cannon at the bow, and a gong which a "brave" pounds faithfully at intervals during the night. The Peking, or Mandarin, dialect obtains
